ST. PATRICK.

Rev. Dr. McLeod Discusses the Life of Ireland's Great Apostle.

The announcement that Rev. Dr. McLeod would take for the theme of his pulpit discourse last evening: "St. Patrick, the Apostle of Ireland," called together an unusually large congregation even for the Second Pres-Dyterian Church, Among the number Desembled were many members of the eisshall she appear once more-Catholic Church, and lovers of St. Patrick, in whose honor the celebration will take place on Tuesday. The Doctor selected his text from Acta xvi., 9, the well known words, "Come over Into Macedonia and help us."

He said that the event was a timely one. The 17th of March being close at hand and a day that is fondly cherished by millions of pur fellow-Christians and fellow-citizens. It is a day linked in their minds with one of the noblest men of whom Christendom can boast, and in every Irish home the name of St. Patrick has been a household word for many centuries. If St, Patrick had lived in Bible times we may be sure that his name would be found among the Bible worthies, but while his name is not recorded in the Bible his faith is found there. False' motions about the old saint, said the speakmust therefore be on our guard against more cars are being handled. Coal traffic them. He was a great and good man, and especially is very heavy.

Mr. Ashurst trustee of the second morttion. The stories of the miracles performed by him have, of course, no truth in them, and the saint appears better when considered as he really was, a good man; nor is he to be held responsible for the rubbish which ignorance and superstition, combined with While St. Patrick was certainly a saint of the Bible type, he had his faults, and these bring him close to us. He had great difficulties to overcome, great temptations to resist great trials and hardships to endure, but he also had great faith, great hope and great charity, and his sainthood consisted in having given his heart to Christ, and in living and laboring for God and humanity in a manly and Christian way. Concerning his early life very little is born in Ireland. The best authority seems to be that he was born in Scotland and was kidnaped when sixteen years old and sold to one of the Irish chiefs, whose flock he was made to tend. He remained a slave for six years and during this period was converted. After securing his liberty he returned to Ecotland. Soon after he saw "in a vision of the night a man whose name was Victoricius, coming as if from Ireland, with letletters, one of which he handed to me." The letter read: "The voice of the Irish people. We entreat thee, holy youth, to come and walk among us." He went in obedience to the heavenly vision, and expressed the motive which actuated as follows: "I bear witness before God and His holy angels that never had any motive except the gospel and ts promises for returning to that nation from which I first escaped." St. Patrick became an Irishman by compulsion, yet afterwards he became an Irishman by divine grace and adoption. From this time his life was that of a pure Christian, and was spent in doing good among the people of his adopted country.

"St. Patrick lived to a grand old age, and no cloud obscured his setting sun. He lived long enough to see the fruit of his labors. Not only did he win over to Christ King Lacghain and the Druid Chiefs, but all the ple became Christians. Of him it might be truly said that he subdued a kingdom. wrought righteoneness, quenched the violence of fire, out of weakness was made strong, proved valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. When his werk was done he retired to a sacred spot, which he might well call his own, and there he fell on sleep, leaving behind him a name and a fame which the world will not willingly let die." The speaker then asked the question, "Why is it that in a land capable of producing plenty there has been found such destitution?' A people proerosity, why is it they have been deal with so pitilessly? Have we not heard of those terrible times when the tongue of the sucking child cleaved to the roof of its mouth for thirst? and how, when the young children asked for bread, no man gave it unto them? Why all this misery during the centuries? Who is to blame for it? The snawer to these questions, the speaker said, is three-fold: England is to blame, Rome is to blame, and Ireland herself is to blame. The speaker then referred to the compact between Henry II. of England and Pope Adrian II., in which the latter gave over to England the country of Ireland, Henry stipulating to give the Pops in return one penny for each house in the country. He declared that whatever may be said of England relative to Ireland before the Reformation there can be no doubt that since that event England has treated Ireland as cruelly as ever a tyrant master treated a slave. "She has bought her, and sold her, and whipped her, and tortured her, and then she wonder ed why Ireland did not love her. She confiscated her lands, ropped her of her language destroyed her commerce persecuted her on account of her religion, and then she wendered why Ireland did not love her. She spacted barbarons penal laws, she winked at the crueities of landlords, she treated frelend as a vessal and not as an equal; she tried to force upon her, at the point of the bayonet, a religious system which she ab-horred, and then she wendered why Ireland did not love her." But for her sad condition Ireland herself is largely to blame. In the first place, she abandoned the religion of St. Patrick, and embraced another religion, which, whatever its spiritmasses in ignorance and poverty. It has, moreover, helped to fester a factions spirit, and has been anything but promotive of brotheriv love, Again, Ireland has suffered from internal strife and unwise leaders. Perhaps the miseries of Ireland in recent years are attributable more to the Irish in this country than to any one cause. Boycotting and agrarianism, the murder of landlords and the infernal use of dynamite, I am persuaded, would scarcely have been heard of if the Irish in this country had not given to their friends at home aid and comfort. They furnished the sinews of war with a lavish hand. Not that they sent their money with the knowledge that it would be put to so had a use. Far otherwise in most cases. But it was so used by a few selfish demagogues who called themselves patriots, but who were careful not to place themselves in

The speaker declared that a cure for Ireland's wrongs lay in a return to the religion of St. Patrick. She must abandon her mummeries and her false idea of God's worship, and teach the people, that God requires an intelligent, reasonable, scriptural, spiritual service. As a remedy for her political wrongs Ireland must not cease to agifate by all lawful means until England rights every political wrong she has imposed upon her. Six centuries of British misrule speak to England on this subject with clarion nor the respect of humanity by playing the tyrant. "I believe the day is coming when all Ireland's wrongs, civil and religious, will be righted, and when peace shall be within her walls and prosperity within her palaces. Then will come the time as of yore when the wilderness and the solitary place shall be made glad by her presence, and when at her smile the desert shall rejoice and bloom as the rose. Sad Ireland was in the days of St. Patrick and St. Columba, and sad shall she be again; and then to her sons and her lov-

A new time table, which will be found in another column, will take effect on the C., L. St. L. and C. to-day, Demands are made more frequently than ever for cars, and side-tracks are being searched for them. Several of the Indiananolis reads find difficulty in obtaining a sufficient number.

Freight trains on the Logansport division of the Vandalia daily average thirty in number. The rush after the snow blockade er, are by no means uncommon, and we has been fully maintained, as many if not

B. and W., in order to prove that they have taken good care of the property, point out the various improvements that have been made in the road since they leased it. All of the details of the arrangement looking to the abandonment of the lease will be perfected to-morrow no

The receivers of the Wabash filed a report showing the number and amount of receivers' certificates issued by them under order of June 6, 1884, authorizing the issuknown, but it is certain that he was not | ance of $2,000 000 certificates to pay current indebtedness. The first of these was placed in New York, where most of the total amount has been taken, in August last. They were sold in three series of $5,000, 10,000 and $20,000, to a total amount of $380 000. The largest single holder is Alex M. White, of New York, who holds ten of the $5,000 and five of the $10,000 certificates. H. W. Rathbone holds the only $20,000 certificate issued. Of the total amount, $175,-000 is due in one year from date of issue, and the balance in two years.

The point has been raised as to whether bound pool would be affected by the strike and its consequent idleness. At present the Missouri Pacific is not carrying any freight and is receiving but little, while the Chicago and Alton has had its tonnage doubled and the Wabash is also carrying much more than usual. The only argument that can be offered in favor of giving the Missouri Pacific its regular percentage is that the same difficulty might at some time beset one of might cause trouble in the pool, It is to on his own note, borrowed $10 000, and, realize its percentages in the pool the M's. in August following he borrowed $10,000. souri Pacific would hardly care how long the strike lasts, as far as its through business is concerned. -- St. Louis Globe Demo-

The majority of prominent railroad men are very little concerned over the announced reduction in East-bound freight rates to a twenty cent basis, or the notice given by the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago Road of the termination of its connection with the Joint Executive Committee after April 1. These two incidents count for little in the face of the demoralized condition of East-bound freight rates, which are now down to, if not below, the cost of transportation. The formal reduction of Eastbound freight rates, at the demand of the Michigan Central, bears simply upon the question of the settlement of the balances in the Chicago pool. is well known that Western roads have not observed the tariff rates, and the Michigan Central, it is said, objects to making settlements in the Chicago pool on s basis that is higher than that at which it and The importance of the Big Four's action would be much greater, railroad men say, it rates were being maintained than it is now, when each company does practically what it pleases. The impression seems to prevail that the Chicago pool will pass in its checks April I. The trank lines will suspend settlement under the east-bound pool per centages after that date unless action to the contrary is taken in the meantime. With the Indianapolis pool broken up, rates af other intercompatitive points are bound to be unsettled, and in that case a maintenance of rates out of Chicago or St. Louis will be impossible even if the form of the Chicago pool is preserved.

THE VANDALIA AND ST. LOUIS POOL. A St. Louis paper credits a member of the East-bound pool with saying: "The Vandalia is not out yet, and there are probabilities that it will withdraw the notice it has given before the sixty days expire. However, even if it should withdraw it would not necessarily break up the pool. Four roads could maintain the pool almost as well as five. If the Vandalia went into the market for freight I think we could make a rate at which we would be perfectly willing they s' ould take all the business. If we stick together I think we could keep the pool up without any difficulty. Still, as I said. the Vandalia is not out yet."

"Eastern railroad men are quoted as expressing the opinion that the Chicago and St. Louis pools can not exist when the trunk line pool goes to pieces. "With all due respect to the gigantic Eastern intellect, I think he knows comparinvely little about our affairs. There is no reason in the world why the St. Louis pool should not stick together even if the trunk line pool goes to pieces, provided the members of the pool remain with it. We employ our own Commissioner and pay him, and while he is responsible to Mr. Fink in some things, he is reponsible to us in others, I we agree to maintain rates, even if it is only at five cents per hundred, there is no reason | sufferer as once. It produces natural, quiet sleep, other pools in the country." "Could not your connections in the East affect the rate if they were not interested in the pool? "Some road that was getting three cents as its proportion of the business might come in here and offer some shipper two cants of that | causes. Twenty-five cents a bettle. two of that. If any one of us found some Eastern road running us ahead in our percentage we'd divert the business in a minute, and that road would never see a pound voice. Their voice is that England of it. No, there is no reason why we will do can never win the love of Ire | it, even if the Vandalia should withdraw."

Margaret J. Carlisle has filed suit against W. H. English and the old First National Bank of Indianapolis, No 55, on account. The complaint alleges that on the 23d of July, the other roads, or that the denial to the | 1878, the plaintiff's assignor, John Carlisle, Missouri Pacific of its usual percentages | was doing business with the bank, and At that time he was the owner in his own right of fourteen $1,000 notes, five notes of $630 each, and sixty notes of $80 each, which he deposited as collateral security with the benk. Flaintiff alleges that the bank collected some of the notes and refused to credit the amounts to said John Carlisle's account except the sum of $13,695,35, leaving a balance of $7,000, and refused to make any statement except as above, thereby compelling Carlisle and his indorsers to pay the $7 000 balance. Plaintiff says she is now the lawful owner of the claim of John Carlisle, and she demands judgment in the sum of $20,000. The defendants claim that there is no foundation whatever for the sait.
